For such unfortunates the Samari. Inbourers. There are enactments forbidding the of paironage. Need of in-treatment is the sole tan Boolety would provide a small stock-in-trade, recreitment of Javanese for estate labour boyond the Dutch Indies; but they are practically null and void, as the Government is favourably inclined to the emirration of coolies, which assists materially the impoverished colonial exchequer. The planters have arged appr labour ordinance forbilding the engag man of or coolies in Java so long as ther services am rereceived a negative reply. It is said that the authorities in Java country at the migration of coolies from that island, though it was been; brought to their notice' that thousands of Javanese have gone under contract to British North. Sorueo and died there by hundreds from hard work and nogleot, while the planters assert that a regular, though underhand, coolie slave market exists at Singapors and is stocked by Javanese who have been either victually kilumpast or taken from their homes under false protenoss. In many other parts of the Netherlands Indies for den coolies are employed by the planters, and they are protected by special labour ardinances. It therefore seems strangs that there alould be no legislation of the kind for the protestion of coolies who are Datch subjects, or for conserving the interests of the planters in Java. The laxity of the local anthorities in regard to the foreign employment of Javaosse coolies is somewhat inconsistent with the culture system or method of officially-we might almost say despotically—directed labour by which the Government of the Notherlands Indies have enriched themselves and provided so offectually for the population under their rule. We suspect, however, the truth is that the ave Administrations, with the cousent of the home Government, are abandoning the old police, on account of its fiscal failur : and are glad of the opportunity of allowing the surplus coolie population to go abroad aud thus relieve the State of the obligation of providing for them, as well as yielding the erchequer a fair revenue. It must be remembered that the Dutch Indies, especially Java, do not cover their expenses, and fliat the home G werncount is called upon every year to make good the deficit in the revenue. Some time ago a scheme for increasing the colonial revenue was considered necessary, and parhaps it includes a relaxation of the rules with respect to planting in Javanud
